The conference is intended to discuss ongoing research on survey and micro data and its role and usage in macroeconomics.

Papers (theoretical, empirical and/or policy-oriented) are actively solicited on issues such as (non-exhaustive list):

- usage of micro/survey data for macro questions
- beliefs, (mis)perceptions, expectations (of households/firms) and their role for the macroeconomy
- distributional effects of macroeconomic shocks
- heterogeneity and evaluation of policies
- methodology of surveys and forecasting performance of survey/micro data in business-cycle research

Preference is given to papers over abstracts.

There is no registration fee for presenters. The submitting co-author is expected to present.
